Steps 5-4-3-2-1

We live in a time of great stress and anxiety. Even though we know that, we should not be anxious. The reality is that we do become anxious—especially in our present situation of quarantine. The danger is that our anxiety can end up controlling us. If you are feeling anxious, here is a way to help. Just work through the following 5 practical steps:

- 5: Begin by looking around you and finding 5 things that you can thank the Lord for right now. It could be your family, spouse, job, health, the flowers outside, or the warm sunshine.
- 4: Reflect on 4 promises of God from the Bible. It could be the promise that He will never leave you, or to forgive you your sin, or to answer your prayers, or to give you grace each day, or that all things will work together for your good.
3. Focus on 3 characteristics of God that are important to you—it could be His faithfulness, His constant love, His care, He never changes, He is all powerful, or that He knows you intimately.
2. Listen to 2 Christian songs or hymns that are your favorites.
1. Pray for 1 person other than yourself.
